ALEX REAGAN

Tokyo-born Alex Reagan is an emerging artist and eco-fashion designer based in Venice, California. Self-taught, Alex Reagan spent his formative years in Aspen, Colorado, experimenting with materials in his makeshift home studio.

Reagan is known for his improvised approach that is driven by a strong and spontaneous vision. Heavily influenced by Contemporary Street Art, as well as his creative heroes Jean-Michel Basquiat and Robert Rauschenberg, Reagan has gravitated towards large-scale multimedia compositions, often incorporating print and text.

Reagan's experimentation with materials and eagerness to elevate his style makes each work he creates unique. Valuing eco-friendly fashion and the revitalization of common materials, Reagan uses an amalgamation of street wear, pop culture, and elevated materials to create characters drowning in fashion. His canvases burst with, as he likes to say, "controlled chaos," indicative of the pop culture and social media-driven world we live in.
